

Hawaii is about 2,000 miles from the American mainland and depends on the mainland as both a market for its own products and a supplier of manufactured goods — which exchange enables the islands to maintain a Western standard of living.

Transport is an absolutely vital service, therefore, when you are situated as Hawaii is — and the 107-day-old strike of the CIO International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union which has tied up all surface shipping of freight assumes the aspect of a revolution.

As a matter of fact, Harry Bridges, the West Coast hot-shot, used revolutionary talk when he went to the islands and told the Hawaiian government it didn't dare to enforce new laws designed to put down the strike and reopen the paralyzed ports.

The physical impact of this strike upon Hawaii isn't the entire issue. The precedent being established by Harry Bridges' continued defiance of all private and public rights, first on the West Coast and now in Hawaii, simply says that a private citizen isn't safe if he gets beyond walking distance of a source of supplies.

It says the precedent says — that neither California nor Hawaii are self-governing democracies. They aren't run by their whole peoples. Not at all. They are run by Harry Bridges' goon squad. In Hawaii the facts are, 2,000 longshoremen are running the islands — at least the 2,000 are able to prevent the islands from being run.

This Australian-born Bridges is a foreigner of gall and craft. On the West Coast he had some public sympathy — but the plight of isolated Hawaii puts Bridges in a mean and ugly light.

Blevins Man Brings in First Bale

Jack Cromer of Blevins Rt. 1, brought in the first bale of cotton of the year yesterday and a Chamber of Commerce petition making up a premium list.

The bale was sold about 11 a.m. to Tom Kinser. With premium money the bale will bring Mr. Cromer at least 40 cents per pound.

10-Year-Old Boy Shoots Hole-in-One

A 10-year-old Hope boy is racking up scores at the Country Club Golf Course that many a local man would give his "eye-teeth" to be shooting.

He is Larry Bruce whose brothers have been identified with golf here for many years. And yesterday Larry did the impossible — a hole-in-one on the 9th. Young Larry made the 150-yard shot with No. 3 Wood.

He finally won with a 39 score. The course par is 34. The hole-in-one was witnessed by Dorsey Collins, Darnell Bagley, Bill Yeaton, Jimmy Cook, and Jimmy Bruce.

This Column Is for the Old People — Someday Their Future May Look a Little Brighter

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP) — I covered a police beat on a newspaper for a great many years and I used to be amazed at what happened to a lot of old cops when they retired.

They didn't live long. A lot of them were too old to work the streets, and soft spots had been picked out for them in precinct stations or the detectives' office or at police headquarters.

Late at night I used to sit around, chewing the fat with them. They had wonderful stories to tell, chattering the way the old men on the walls of Troy must have chattered, reliving their lives a hundred times.

There was something wonderful about them. It was this:

They were alive, sitting on a chair, talking, answering a telephone, directing a team of detectives on a robbery, taking down notes from the cops who called in. Death seemed so far away from each of them that I used to wonder about each in turn: Will he ever die?

Then one day they'd retire. There'd be a little party, a couple of awkward speeches. The old men's eyes would glisten and then they'd be gone.

I wouldn't see them again. They had said they'd drop around to say hello. But they never came. And one day I'd hear they were dead, maybe only a month or six months after they'd quit.

I never could be quite sure about what had happened. Had they finally decided to retire because they felt something inside them begin to weaken and slide down hill?

Or, was it the sudden change in their life-long routine of going to work every day, getting up at the same hour, going to bed at the same hour, that broke them physically?

Or, was it just the let-down that sapped their life away fast? I mean, was it the sudden inactivity, the feeling that now truly at last they were not needed for anything?

I used to think that, if, when they retired, they had found something that really kept them busy they might have lived for years.

You must have understood what a really old and retired man feels if you've ever been really sick and spent weeks in a chair by a window, trying to get well.

You feel weak and out of the race. Still, if you're young, you know that in a couple of weeks you'll be back in that crazy scramble outside your window. So you can endure the few weeks easily.

But a retired old man can't feel anything, I guess, except that for him the race is really over at last, and that must do something that's not good.

(Sure, I know there are plenty of retired people who still lead a full life. I'm talking about all those that suddenly feel the rug of life pulled out from underneath.)

But between the young people and the really old and retired there is a growing army of aging people, no longer young, not yet really old.

And, because in American society there's been so much emphasis on speed and hard work, aging people have been looked upon in business as something less than necessary.

It must be an awful thing to be aging and out of work and know that the eyes which look across an employment office table at you are thinking: "Can he stand up under this job I might offer him, or just where will he fit in?"

Maybe something like the Loyal Order of Moose is trying to do will find an answer to some of these things. It's setting up a laboratory at Moosheaven Park, Fla.

A professor of psychology has been hired. He'll have a staff. They'll try to find answers to the problem of how to use elderly people in American life.

Second Ouachita Faculty Member Ends Own Life

Arkadelphia, Aug. 16 — (UP) — Two members of the faculty of Ouachita college here have taken their own lives within the past four days.

Latest death was that of Bob Cowan, former coach and later a teacher of physical education at the college. He was found dead in his home yesterday with his head nearly torn off by a shotgun blast.

Corner Alva Harris said the tragedy occurred while the 50-year-old Cowan's wife was downtown shopping. Earlier, the corner kid, Cowan had been cleaning the shotgun and had fired a test shot.

When his wife's mother heard the second report of the gun she became alarmed and ran into the street, requesting a young woman passing by to "see what is wrong."

Cowan was found, with the gun lying nearby, by a neighbor who said the teacher had been in ill health recently and had just returned from a Texas hospital.

He came to Ouachita as coach and physical education director in the fall of 1943 from North Little Rock high school where he was head coach.

He was graduated from Ouachita in 1921 and an outstanding athlete. He coached Ouachita's football and basketball teams in 1945 and 1946 when these sports were resumed by the college after World War Two.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two brothers, Thomas of North Little Rock and Carl of Palo Alto, Texas.

Only last Friday J. C. Stewart, former dean of men at the Baptist college, shot himself to death in front of the pulpit of the Arkadelphia church of which he was assistant Sunday School superintendent. He left a note attributing his action to ill health. After being relieved as dean of men, Stewart had been professor of education and psychology at the college.

Senators Order Reopening of Arms Hearing

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP) — Senators reversed themselves in a stormy session today and ordered hearings reopened on the administration's $1,450,000,000 foreign arms program.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the combined senate foreign relations and arms services committee announced after a closed session that the groups will hear a half dozen witnesses. They will include Henry A. Wallace and Norman Thomas, both former minority party presidential candidates.

Connally said the additional hearings, starting tomorrow, will take about two days.

He said he doubts now that the senate group will vote this week on the bill, which was approved for the full amount yesterday by the house foreign affairs committee.

Senators scheduled an afternoon closed session to talk over with Secretary of Defense Johnson a report from Gen. Douglas MacArthur covering the strategic situation in the Japan-Korea area.

Johnson announced that MacArthur had declined an invitation, voted 13 to 12 by the senate, to return home to testify on the arms plan.

Administration acceptance had been forecast earlier for some of a series of amendments offered by the Vandenberg-Dulles (R-Mich.) and Dulles (R-N.Y.) to the foreign arms program.

Before the combined senate foreign relations and arms services committee met, an administration spokesman told reporters he thinks some compromises will have to be made in order to get a bill out speedily.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the foreign relations group talked the Vandenberg-Dulles proposals with the chief legislative officials in a two-hour conference but declined any comment.

Bradley Takes Over Highest Military Post

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley today took over the nation's highest military post.

The former army chief of staff was sworn in by Secretary of Defense Johnson as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. He is the first to hold the office, recently created by congress.

The joint chiefs of staff are the operating heads of the three armed services — the army, navy and air force. They serve as the military advisors to the president and the secretary of defense.

It will be Bradley's job to smooth out any squabbles among them, although he will have no vote or command authority. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme allied commander in Europe during the last war, has been serving temporarily as chairman of the group.

As he took the oath at the Pentagon, Bradley was surrounded by the three secretaries of the armed forces, his fellow chiefs of staff and Deputy Secretary of Defense Stephen T. Early.

Standing proudly beside him was his wife.

Bradley's hand, resting on the Bible, trembled as he repeated the oath.

After the ceremony in Johnson's office the gathering of high ranking officers, congressmen and personal friends went down a hall to the office Bradley had occupied as chief of staff.

There, Bradley spoke in the new army chief, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, who has been vice chief of staff for the army.

During World War II Collins served under Bradley in the drive across Europe which ultimately saw Bradley take command of 1,300,000 combat troops, the largest body of U. S. soldiers ever to serve under a single commander.

Mitchell died at 11:59 a.m. at Eastern Standard Time in Henry Grady memorial hospital. Doctors said she had a fractured skull. Fractures of the pelvis, and other injuries.

The hospital listed her age as 43.

The quiet author of the famous civil war novel was hit by a car driven by a woman, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, an advertising executive, who crossed the street while walking to a movie near her home.

Opponents Hold Reorganization Plan Will Fail

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP) — The fate of President Truman's reorganization plan to create a new welfare department rested today on whether opponents can muster 38 senate votes against it.

One administration leader predicted privately that the senate would hood Mr. Truman's set-back. The opponents were not so optimistic.

"If all members of the senate are here and voting I think the resolution of disapproval will be passed," Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) of the senate executive reorganizations committee, said cautiously.

His committee reported the plan adversely to the senate, 7 to 3. Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) — one of the authors of the disapproval resolution (which requires a constitutional majority of 49 senators to become effective), was equally cautious. He agreed that a heavy turnout was necessary if the 49 votes were to be obtained.

The plan would group three activities — welfare, education and public health — into a welfare department under a single head with cabinet rank. Oscar Ewing, secretary of federal administration, is expected to be President Truman's choice for the new cabinet post should it be set up.

Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) called the senate into session at 9 a.m. (CST), an hour earlier than usual, to debate the plan. A final vote was scheduled for 5 p.m. (CST), unless an agreement was reached to vote earlier, which appeared unlikely.

Under the reorganization act, a presidential reorganization plan will become effective within 60 days after its submission to congress, unless disapproved by either house.

Three Girls Missing, Hunt Continues

Little Rock, Aug. 16 — (UP) — State police continued their search today for three of five girls who escaped from the girls training school here Sunday during a disturbance created by two other inmates.

Still at large were Juanita Hall, 16, of Texarkana; Jean Henney, 15, of Little Rock; and Edith Ross, 16, of England.

Two other girls — Clemmie Cunningham, 17, of Hamburg, and Ardis Little, 14, of Fort Smith — were taken into custody while hitchhiking at Kensett yesterday afternoon.

The five went through an unlocked door when Ruby Ann Watts of Crawfordville, Tenn., and Juanita Elsie Mullins of Little Rock, both 18, barricaded themselves in the room and wrecked the contents. Officials at the school said the two drank rubbing alcohol stolen from the infirmary before launching their riot. Both were brought to Little Rock where they were held in custody while the Little Rock county jail, Mrs. Fannie Goodman, superintendent, described them as "incorrigibles."

Meanwhile, Gov. Sid McMath announced that an early meeting of the school's board of control would be held to discuss a report recently completed by a committee from the Arkansas council on children and youth. The report — said to be very critical — was given to the council July 21 and McMath said it would not be made public officially until that time.

However, it was understood that the report is critical of the use of buildings and grounds, housing and home life of the girls, the administrative personnel, feeding and clothing, lack of education and the lack of a merit system, discipline and recreational facilities.

Yes Sir, Life Is a Breezy Round of Gayety Since Blowhard Came to Our House

By HAL BOYLE

New York — Life has been a breezy round of gayety since "Little Blowhard" came to our house to stay.

The neighbors drop in unexpectedly. Best friends from bygone years look us up and stay for an enchanted evening.

Yes, sir, the world has been making a beaten path to our doorway. And it's all because of "Little Blowhard." He's boomed our social standing so high I don't see how the Blue Book can leave us out another year — unless its editors are overlooking us for pure spite.

"Little Blowhard" is an air-conditioning unit. He specializes in making the good old summertime feel as good as the good old wintertime. He throws heat out the window as fast as he finds it; just loves to re-weather the weather.

For years Frances has been threatening to get one of these gadgets. And I've fought against it — on religious as well as financial grounds.

"The Lord meant Manhattan to be cool in the summer," I objected. "He would float an iceberg up the East River and blow a wind across it to make everyone comfortable."

"Don't talk nonsense on your days off from work," said Frances. "Electricity comes from heaven, and they've figured out a way to use electricity to make a room cool. And, furthermore, the Lord helps those who help themselves."

From there the conversation drifted on to more important topics, like why hadn't I bought an engagement ring 12 years ago and when, if ever, did I plan to get it? Soon there was a nice cool two-way breeze going.

Well, I forgot all about the matter until the other day I came home and opened the bedroom door. I glanced at the window — and it looked like the radiator of a speeding car was crashing into the room.

Instinctively I hit the floor. Just then Frances came in and said: "What are you doing, Rover boy, looking for termites?"

"Duck — or it'll hit you," I said, pointing at the window.

"Don't be a goose — that's our new air-conditioning unit," announced Frances. "Isn't it a nice surprise?"

I tried to tell her that it was foolish to buy a wind machine so late, since the worst of the summer was over. But it is no use arguing with wives or the weather. For the next five days a heat wave gripped the town.

"See?" said Frances, every time the thermometer rose. And all it did was to rise.

"Little Blowhard" huffed and puffed like a polar bear choking on an ice cube. Three mornings in a row I woke up with icicles between my toes. Then Frances found that by turning a few knobs the little monster could be calmed down.

Our guests love him. They come at dusk and most of them leave before daybreak. They like to tease "Little Blowhard." They blow cigarette smoke in his side, and he whooshes it out his front radiator in a filtered blue haze.

"I'm not running him down," said one guest, "but I know an air-conditioner up in the Bronx that can blow smoke rings. Of course, he's a year older than your Little Blowhard."

I've had a little trouble with another guest who wants to pour ice water and soap powder in "Little Blowhard's" side. Wants to see if the can manufacture snowflakes. But darned if I'm going to turn my bedroom into a ski slope for anybody.

Nationalists Lose Contact With Kanshien

anton, Aug. 16 — (AP) — Radio contact was lost today with the leaders of Kanshien, about 200 miles northwest of this nationalist provisional capital.

An army spokesman virtually admitted loss of the important radio center to advancing communist troops.

Many foreigners fled Canton aboard the British steamer Wuseh as private reports placed communist troops only 155 miles north-east of Canton. The Wuseh sailed for Hong Kong tonight loaded with foreign residents getting away from here.

At the same time authorities here said American naval planes would evacuate Americans from this nationalist provisional capital as other facilities proved inadequate to get them out ahead of Reds.

There are about 73 Americans here. They include 15 in the embassy, 19 in the consulate general and most of the others in the joint commission on rural reconstruction.

The 44-acre Shameen island, which shelters most foreign firms, was a scene of great activity during the day. Everywhere people were packing their belongings.

Private reports said the Reds were threatening Tayu, near the Kwangtung border 170 miles north-east of Canton. If these reports prove correct they would cast some doubt on a nationalist army-spokesman's claim of a successful nationalist counterattack further to the northeast.

Barnhill May Seek to Ban Married Gridders

Fayetteville, Aug. 16 — (AP) — Head Coach John Barnhill said today he hopes to put into effect sometime in the future a rule that football players at the University of Arkansas cannot be married.

Barnhill disclosed his plans in commenting on such a rule now in effect at Southern Methodist University.

"I agree with Matty Bell in his policy of limiting college football to the single man, but do not intend to enforce such a rule at Arkansas at the present time because of the presence of GI's still in the college ranks," the Arkansas mentor said.

When college football again returns to a predominance of 18 and 19-year-olds, single men will be the rule. This, I'm sure, will be quite widespread in collegiate football."

Barnhill declared he wanted to make it clear that his plans were not based on any trouble married players give the coaches.

He said all of the gridders expected to make up the freshman team at the university this year are single men.

A small vial of rose perfume can have as much as 200 pounds of roses in it.

INVADING ENGLAND—A fierce-looking Viking assumes the pose of his ancestors when they invaded England 1500 years ago. He stands at the prow of a replica of the original craft that will bring him and his companions from Copenhagen to invade English shores. The trip, planned by British and Danish travel associations, will commemorate the original landing. The modern Vikings will land on the beaches of Kent, then sail their craft up the Thames to London.

3 Navy Fliers Parachute to Safety

Key West, Fla., Aug. 16 — (UP) — Three navy fliers made successful parachute jumps last night before their plane crashed and burned just offshore, attracting some 4,000 spectators.

Crash boats picked up two of the crewmen of the torpedo bomber, and the third landed in a residential section. They were given emergency treatment at the station hospital and released.

The plane was on a routine flight from Boca Chica Naval air station when its single engine caught fire. The pilot, Lt. Cmdr. T. V. McEntire, turned out to sea and radioed a distress message.

He ordered Lt. Don Gibb and Chief Petty Officer John A. Swan to bail out, and the jumped himself.

The crowd began to gather immediately, and so packed the beachfront road that ambulances and fire engines had difficulty in reaching the scene. The wreckage in shallow water, burned for half an hour.

Roses were among the first of all fragrant flowers to be used as perfume.

Movie Boxoffice Charge Accounts Now Likely

Hollywood, Aug. 16 — (AP) — You may soon be able to step up to the boxoffice at the Bijou and say: "Charge it, please."

Yes, to crown such lure as free dishes, bank nights and popcorn, movie men have dreamed up new bait: boxoffice charge accounts.

The see-it-now-and-pay-later plan was hatched by the King brothers, a trio of Hollywood producers. They're offering it—free—as a tonic for ailing film profits.

The Kings, who arrived at their present enterprise via an interest in slot machine movies, intend to offer their plan to the Theater Owners of America. The organization begins its annual four-day convention here Sept. 12.

The plan operates this way: A patron's credit rating will be established just as it is when he opens a department store charge account. He will be issued a credit card. At the boxoffice, the cashier will note the card number, name and number of guests. The customer will be billed at the end of the month.

Are credit happy Americans ready to rise to the lure?

Yes, says Frank King, spokesman for the brothers. "Most families live on budgets," Frank says, "and the family bankroll is usually pretty thin the last few days before payday. If they knew they could pay later, a lot more people would go to the movies."

Bridge Group to Hold Meet, Organize

Helena, Aug. 16 — (AP) — Members of the new Arkansas-Mississippi Bridge commission will hold an organizational meeting here Thursday.

The commission, which formerly consisted of six members, recently was enlarged to 18 members to give representation to more cities in the area which the bridge will serve.

Lahar Is Named Line Coach at Arkansas

Fayetteville, Aug. 15 — (AP) — Harold Lahar, former University of Oklahoma and professional football player, was named assistant line coach at the University of Arkansas today.

The appointment, effective Aug. 22, was announced by head coach and Athletic Director John Barnhill.

Lahar, a native of Sulphur, La., was graduated from Oklahoma in 1940. He was captain of the Sooners team his senior year.

He has played with the Buffalo Bills for the past three seasons, captaining that pro team in 1947 and '48.

Johnny Palmer, Up and Coming Man in Golf

Chicago, Aug. 16 (AP). — Let it be warning to top money winner Sammy Snead, up-and-coming Johnny Palmer may be golf's greatest man of concentration since Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson left the circuit.

That's why Palmer yesterday walked off with golf's biggest single victory wad, the $10,000 nugget in Tam O'Shanter's "world" meet.

Johnny's 68 to 70 playoff triumph over resplendent Jimmy Demaret hoisted him to third spot in the cash-collecting ranks with $23,512. Snead, who finished third in the "world," has $30,893, and national open champion Cary Middlecoff has $24,600.

Palmer fashioned his "world" triumph on an iron-nerved approach game. It was his biggest win since taking the 1947 Western open.

Lights Fail, Diver Hauled to Surface

Aboard Velero IV off Santa Cruz Island, Cal., Aug. 16 — (UP) — Submarine Explorer Otis Barton and a crew of assistants worked today to overcome a mechanical difficulty that prevented him from breaking the world's diving record.

The 48-year-old scientist had to order his bentoscope — a five-foot steel diving ball — surfaced after he had gone down only 2,300 feet.

He had hoped to dive to 6,000 feet, twice as deep as man ever has gone. But the powerful, 1,500-watt lights outside the bentoscope failed and the scientist was left in pitch darkness.

The trouble lay in the power lines which apparently were unable to deliver enough current from the Barge Cherry Pecker on the surface to the diving ball.

"It would be a farce to go down without lights," he telephoned from the bentoscope.

Immediately after he was hauled to the surface, Barton and research scientists for the Hancock foundation, which is sponsoring the dive, began working on the electrical equipment.

Indications were that Barton might make another series of test runs before trying again to break the record.

He was smiling and confident as he wriggled through the 15-inch hatch into the bentoscope yesterday.

Barton wore a baseball cap, a heavy navy pea jacket, a sweater, shirt, grey sweat pants and gloves to ward off the icy cold.

"It's already quite dark," he reported at the 150-foot level.

At the 20-foot level, he reported a "beautiful jellyfish swimming on its back." At 500 feet, the lights began to fade. At 850 feet, he saw hundreds of phosphorescent fish, "like fireflies at night." Next he saw a "beautiful long eel" and a jellyfish that "looks like a golden globe."

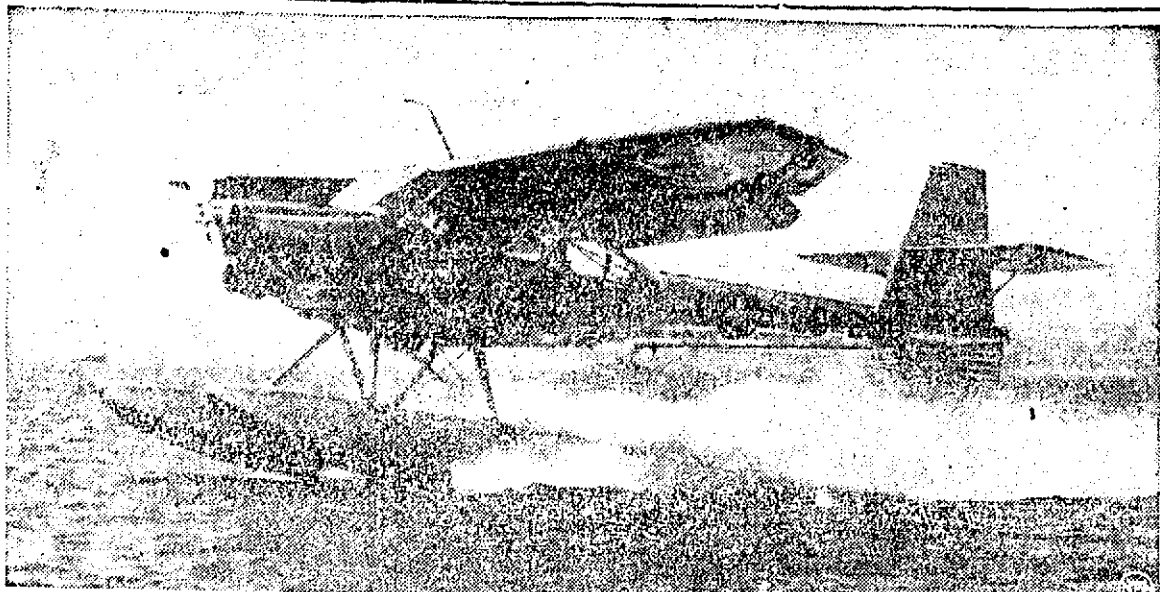

Educational Aid to Schools to Be Discussed

Washington, Aug. 15 — (UP) — Chairman John Lesinski, D. Mich., of the house labor committee announced today he has invited religious, education and labor leaders to "roundtable discussions," beginning next Monday, on federal-aid-to-education legislation.

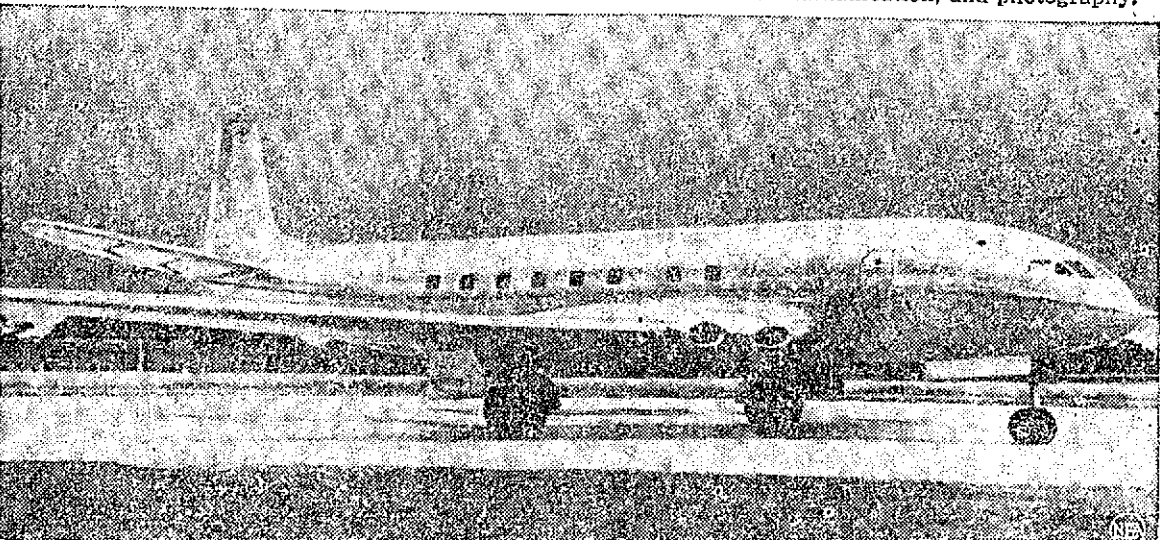

His move was promptly assailed by Rep. Graham A. Barden, D., N. C., and Tom Steed, D., Okla., two supporters of the stymied Barden aid-to-education bill which has stirred up a bitter religious controversy because it would deny federal funds to Catholic and other private schools.

Barden denounced Lesinski's invitation as a "grandstand play for some ulterior motive I fear I understand."

"I regard it as a wholly foolish gesture," he said.

ALL-AROUND AIRPLANE—Most versatile plane in Uncle Sam's air arsenal, the all-metal Convair L-13 skims over San Diego Bay in its first water test. The Air Force liaison plane, exchanged its customary wheels for floats. It can be equipped with ski wheels for snow operations and double-wheel landing gear for desert missions. Its folding wings and tail make towing and storage easier. The L-13 will be used by the Air Force in liaison, rescue, observation, communication, and photography.

WORLD'S FIRST JET AIRLINER—The first and only full jet airliner in the world is the Comet. Shown here on a runway in Hatfield, England, the plane will carry 36 passengers and a crew of four. Powered by four De Havilland "Ghost" jet engines, it will fly at 40,000 feet and is said to have a cruising speed of almost 500 mph. A trip from London to Sydney, Australia, will take only 36 hours.

Earl Witt, Spa Political Figure, Succumbs

Witt was a native of Mt. Ida. He was a graduate of the University of Arkansas School of Law, and came to Hot Springs in 1919. He was closely associated with former Hot Springs Mayor Leo McLaughlin.

Although he had been residing at his ranch in Montgomery county since 1947, he maintained his legal residence in Hot Springs. He was a director of the bank of Murfreesboro, and the Bank of Montgomery county. He was a Mason and a steward in the First Methodist church of Hot Springs.

State Has No Polio Fatalities Over Weekend

Little Rock, Aug. 15 — (AP) — Arkansas eased through the weekend with no polio fatalities reported, the state health department said today.

The total number of cases reported for the year, rose to 412. A definite "slowdown" still was in progress as the disease hospitalized only 55 persons last week.

There have been 33 deaths from polio in Arkansas this year.

MacArthur Will Not Return to U. S.

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP). — Gen. Douglas MacArthur has formally declined an invitation to return to the United States to give congress a report on the Far Eastern situation.

The senate foreign relations and armed services committees had voted 13 to 12 to ask MacArthur to come home from Tokyo to testify in connection with the administration's $1,450,000,000 foreign armament bill.

Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson today made public the text of a reply from MacArthur in which the general said:

"For the best reasons set forth in my public statement of Aug. 11th, I believe I can best serve the national interest by remaining at my post of duty here."

Johnson had forwarded the request of the senate committees to MacArthur and vice admiral Arthur D. Bader, also wanted for testimony on the far eastern situation.

Johnson did not order either to return.

MacArthur in his reply to Johnson said his statement of Aug. 11 was as follows:

"I could not help but be deeply appreciative of the honor reflected in the desire expressed by certain distinguished members of the U. S. senate that I proceed to Washington to give my views for consideration by the congress on the issue of United States arms aid to the government of China."

No reply has been received from Admiral Bader.

Two Governors Become Atlantic Union Members

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 16 — (UP) — Govs. Gordon Browning of Tennessee and Sid McMath of Arkansas today became members of the national council of the Atlantic Union committee, which seeks a federal union of Atlantic Pact nations.

They accepted membership at a dinner meeting addressed by Edward J. Meeman, editor of the Scripps-Howard Memphis Press-Scimitar. Meeman warned that "a military alliance is not enough."

"We need a permanent federation of the free," the editor said. "For no alliance has ever endured, no federation has ever been broken."

He said that proponents of a world federation at this time were seeking something "remote and ideal."

"We can have a true world government only after the free nations, by federation, have given freedom such prestige. . . . that freedom and democracy can again resume their march around the globe, and one nation after another can obtain admittance to the great union," he said.

Browning said that every approach to peace should be investigated, and McMath stressed that "permanent peace cannot be obtained until some agency such as this can be perfected."

Kirk Confers Hour With Stalin

Moscow, Aug. 16 — (AP) — U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk said today his meeting with Prime Minister Stalin in the Kremlin last night was a "courteous pleasant visit."

The conversation lasted about 45 minutes. It was the first time any high American official had seen Stalin in nearly a year.

Kirk sat at a long table in the prime minister's office and talked in an informal and relaxed manner. Kirk said the conversation dealt with "general subjects."

Kirk said he requested the interview with Stalin and described his visit as a "courtesy call" according to protocol. It was the first time the 61 year old American envoy had met the Soviet leader. Kirk, a retired admiral who succeeded Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith as ambassador to Moscow, arrived in the Soviet capital in June.

All Moscow morning newspapers carried front page stories on the Kirk visit, and American relations always are a subject of interest here.

A complete version of the meeting is being sent to Washington today. After the visit to the Kremlin, Kirk was conferred with the first Secretary George Morgan directly to the American embassy where they sent off a first account of the talk.

Barbour and Morgan accompanied Kirk to the Kremlin. On the Soviet side at the meeting, besides Stalin, were Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky and Foreign Office Translator Jan Troyanovsky, son of the Soviet union's first ambassador to the United States.

It could not be learned whether economic questions were brought up. However, following a similar "courtesy visit" between Stalin and the new British ambassador, Sir David Kelly, last June, Russian receptiveness to proposals for increased trade with the west was noticeably emphasized.

The creed was said by all, followed by the group singing "America" the song of the month. The devotional was read by Mrs. Hartsfield. Roll call was answered with "rolling what each plan to exhibit at the Fair."

A garden report was given by Mrs. Bearden.

During the recreation period Mrs. William Butler had charge and directed the games with the prize going to Mrs. Ernest Cobb.

Refreshments were served to 11 members and one visitor, Miss Jimmie Sutton.

The August meeting will be a family picnic at the Pines swimming pool, August 26.

Mr. Thornblow finally had completed his Great Play, Melvin Mosby had selected its cast — Pat was not among them; the sets had been constructed and painted and hammers together in what had formerly been the reception room; rehearsals had begun.

"Shall we go up and watch?" Baynell asked Fritz when he stepped in one evening. "I promised Mother I'd stick around a while and lend a helping hand if needed. You won't know what I could do to further the drama."

Fritz said, "I like to be useful. Besides, imagine the thrill of seeing art in the raw! I wouldn't miss it for anything."

Gaynell led the way to the third floor.

The theater was full of people, including all of the players a few friends who acted as scene shifters, prop men and what-nots; even the dogs and cats were present.

Mr. Thornblow approached and Gaynell presented him to Fritz.

"Delighted, I'm sure," Fritz said, shaking hands. Then seeing from Mr. Thornblow's expression that even that was not enough, "I've had one life-long ambition. Just one. To meet a live play-wright and see if he was alive, if you would what I mean? Do you mind — I know this is asking a big favor — but would you mind, old chap, if I were to day . . . er . . . pinch you?"

"Look," Gaynell broke in, "Mother's beckoning. She wants to come on in. I know you'll excuse us, Mr. Thornblow."

She smiled at him and took Fritz by the arm.

"You're terrible," she said Fritz, as soon as she could. "You're really a nasty man. I shan't let you stay, or introduce you to another person, Fritz, if you can't be sweet."

"But I was being sweet," he protested, as she dragged him along. "And helpful."

"Yes, that's right," Emily caught his last word, giving them each a fleeting, vague smile of welcome, symbol of all that she had on her mind. "We need help. I want everyone to help. Dear me, I had no idea things could be so confusing. . . my poor nerves."

DOROTHY DIX Helpful Husbands

Dear Miss Dix: I am of the opinion that if husbands would help their wives more with household duties there would be less divorce. I am a married man and it is a pleasure to me to help my wife all I can. Women get tired of doing the same thing over and over every day and they should have vacations just the same as men.

Answer: You are dead right. Probably no woman blessed with a husband who helped her wash the dishes and put junior to bed ever thought of looking up the trains for Reno. She knows that she has drawn the capital prize in the matrimonial lottery. To understand why women set such an inordinate value on their husbands helping with the housework one has to delve into the mysteries of feminine psychology. It isn't because the work is overworked or tired or even that the man is of any actual assistance. What the wife values is the husband's gesture, a sort of recognition of the hardness of the wife's job and the husband's attempt to lighten it.

In their hearts most wives are envious of their husbands. They feel that their husbands have got the soft end of the matrimonial bargain. They think that their husbands work a lot less snap, pretty story or a handsome office in which he spends most of his time hearing or telling funny stories and going out to lunch, whereas they have to toil all day in the monotony of the home, doing the same tasks over and over again with no more thrilling conversation than that furnished by the baby who says ga-ga or the children who fight and cry half of the time.

When a husband comes home at night and says he is tired, and when he leaves wife to do the dinner and wash the dishes and put the children to bed while he reads the paper, she gets a post mortem on her marriage, peevishness and thinks how much harder she has worked than he has and that if anybody is tired she is the one.

We are always talking about women helping their husbands by taking over in their absence. The reverse of this is equally true, and if a man wants his wife to be a good housekeeper, he can stimulate her by praising her cooking and helping her with her budget and taking a genuine heart interest in the running of the home.

Of course, women need vacations. There is nobody on earth who needs a vacation as much as the housewife. Because the home is more or less a treadmill in which women are forever cooking meals which are eaten as soon as cooked, sweeping floors that are littered again within an hour, washing little faces that are dirty the next minute, women need a change every now and then.

When a woman slacks down on her housekeeping, when she begins to nag, when she begins to pick on the children and find fault with everything they do, she needs vacation. She is fed up on domesticity, and if she can go away for even a few days she comes back with a new perspective on her job.

If there is enough money in a family for only one person to have a vacation, give it to the wife. Then everybody will get the advantage of it.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls who do not drink or smoke, but who go out with some nice boys and girls, always to respectable places. Sometimes to the theatre, sometimes to a dance at our church hall. But our problem is, how late should we stay out? As I work I cannot leave before 9 o'clock and as Dad insists on us being home at 12 o'clock it breaks up the evening's fun. Dad asked us to write to you to settle the issue definitely and what you say goes. Do you think 1 or 2 o'clock is too late for Saturday night?

TWO SISTERS

Answer: Certainly not for Saturday night because you can sleep late the next day but too late for a week night if you have to get down to work early in the morning. Tell your father that parties begin at later hours than they did when he and I were young.

It is a pity, because both boys and girls need their sleep and would be the better for being in bed by midnight, but we can't change customs. We have to accept them.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: What is your opinion on make-up? If we go down the main street with our lips and cheeks painted even say "hello baby" to us and we make a hit, but if we go about without any lipstick and rouge they don't notice us. Give us your advice on this subject.

Answer: Cosmetics are a vice or a vice, according to the direction with which you use them. It is all right for a girl to use enough make-up to improve her looks, but all wrong for her to use enough to make her conspicuous. When you go out painted up like a house afire and men call "hello baby" to you, it is an insult and not a tribute to your attractions.

Germans Plan Coalition Government

Victorious Conservative leaders in western Germany began planning today for a coalition government.

Calls for talks went out from Dr. Konrad Adenauer, 73 year old leader of the Christian Democratic Union (CDU) which emerged in Sunday's elections as the biggest single force in the new state.

The CDU plans to unite with smaller conservative parties in a coalition that will exclude the left-of-center Social Democrats, second largest party. The government probably will be formed early next week, with Dr. Adenauer expected to become the first chancellor (prime minister) in Germany since Hitler.

German communists reacted with a surprising tone of conciliation to their defeat in the Sunday balloting. Otto Muechke, one of their top leaders, said they had a chance and failed. He indicated there would be a shakeup in the Communist party, which won only 15 out of 400 seats. The CDU won 139 and the Social Democrats 131.

Alan G. Kirk, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, conferred for 45 minutes with Premier Stalin last night. Kirk described his first meeting with Stalin as a courtesy call and said it was a "pleasant visit."

Russia has made its ambassador to Belgrade a deputy foreign minister. The announcement made no mention of a successor in Yugoslavia, which was denounced last week as an "enemy and foe of the Soviet union."

The guerrilla radio in Greece broadcast charges of firing by Yugoslav border patrols on guerrillas retreating before the Greek government's new offensive in northern Greece. Yugoslavia recently closed her border with Greece.

The government in Athens said mopping up continued in the offensive against the guerrillas in the Vitsi mountains near Albania.

In China, big American and British oil companies began moving out of Canton in the face of the communist drive for the Nationalist refugee capital. The nationalists claimed a counter attack had driven the Reds out of Nanking, 195 miles to the northeast.

Violent Death Toll Climbs To Six

By The Associated Press
Arkansas' violent death toll for the week has reached six. Four of the victims lost their lives in Arkadelphia area Monday.

The suicide of physical education Director Bob Cowan of Ouachita college and three deaths resulting from a head-on automobile collision six miles south of Arkadelphia were the Monday fatalities.

The three persons killed in the collision were: Mildred Gladys Perry, 27, Little Rock; F. E. Bul-Hitt, 75, Houston, Tex.; and Lee Sturdyvant, Little Rock railroad employe.

Lionel Not Impressed By Sister

Hollywood, Aug. 16 — (AP) — The president of the United States, the only living former president and a former prime minister of England, think Ethel Barrymore is pretty wonderful — but her brother Lionel is not impressed.

Miss Barrymore, distant ruler of America's royal family of the theater, was 70 years old yesterday. In honor of the occasion, a nationwide broadcast last night carried tributes from President Truman, Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and scores of other great personalities.

But at a luncheon yesterday Lionel Barrymore could think of nothing more to say than: "Well, Ethel! I'm awfully happy you are with us and I wish you many happy returns."

Studio Head Louis B. Mayer, who gave the luncheon for Miss Barrymore, said: "Gosh, that's a heck of a speech. You can say more than that."

"I'm sorry," replied Lionel, "but my writer has gone to San Francisco."

In contrast, were President Truman's remarks, recorded for the broadcast: "I am here to pay tribute to myself and for countless of my fellow countrymen to a great lady and a great artist," Truman said.

"I have seen her in most of her roles, and I am eternally indebted to her for the pleasure she has given me. To Ethel Barrymore, first lady of the American stage, many happy returns of the day."

Miss Barrymore responded: "I said there is not time enough left in my life for me to thank you enough for this overwhelming tribute. It's far more than I deserve, but believe me, it's not more than I can take to my heart."

Drunken Girls Cause Disorder in Prison

Little Rock, Aug. 15 — (AP)—Two inmates who had drunk stolen rum and alcohol wrecked their rooms in the Arkansas girls' industrial school near here yesterday.

Other inmates escaped the riotous scene during the three-hour disturbance. They still are at large.

Ruth Ann Watts, Crawfordville, Tenn., and Juanita Elsie Mullins, Little Rock, both 18 were brought to the school, said "to sober up."

Officers said the state police broke into their rooms at the school and quelled the disturbance.

As the girls were taken from their cell today for return to the industrial school, Ruth Ann told reporters:

"We're not going to be good. If they take us back down there, we'll finish the job of destruction."

Ruth Ann said she was angry because she was caught taking a small piece of cheese from an ice-cream at the school. Elsie explained she was peeved because an instructor took her to task for not being a Christian.

Giggling and laughing about their experience, the girls told of taking a piece of cheese from the school's kitchen. Elsie said she was "amazed" at the police.

Sgt. W. T. Bolling said that when they arrived at the school the girls were screaming curse words and tearing up furniture. The officers said that after breaking into the rooms they found the girls trashing sticks torn from the furniture.

School Supt. Fannie Goodman said a trained nurse who had left the hospital door unlocked, giving the girls access to the alcohol, was charged "because of negligence."

She said the acts of the Watts and Mullins girls, whom she called "reckless," illustrated the need for an isolation section at the school.

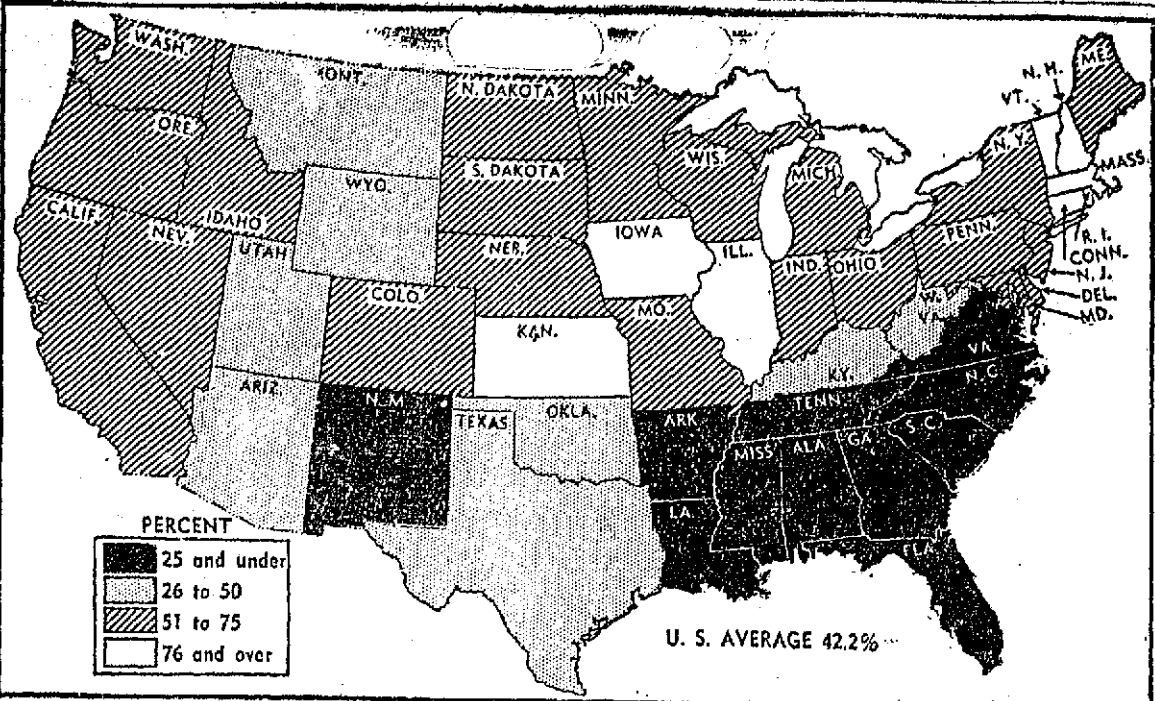

"We are not allowed to punish them, you know," she said.

Mrs. Goodman reported that the Mullins girl had escaped from the school "a few times and the Watts girl three times in the past two years."

The five girls who escaped were identified by state police as Juanita Elsie Mullins, 17, Texarkana; Gene Cunningham, 17, Hamburg; Gene Henney, 15, Little Rock; Edith Rags, 16, England; and Audin Pittigrew, 14, Fort Smith.

FCC Unauthorized to Ban Radio Liquor Advertising

Washington, Aug. 15 — (AP)—The federal communications commission said today it is without legal authority to ban hard liquor advertising on the radio.

The commission made the statement in reply to a letter from Senator Johnson (D-Colo.), chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee.

Johnson expressed distaste for beer and wine advertising now common in broadcasting programs, and asserted that similar advertising by radio or television for hard liquor would be "unthinkable."

Johnson said the acts of the Watts and Mullins girls, whom she called "reckless," illustrated the need for an isolation section at the school.

"We are not allowed to punish them, you know," she said.

Mrs. Goodman reported that the Mullins girl had escaped from the school "a few times and the Watts girl three times in the past two years."

Democrats Snub States Righters

Atlanta, Aug. 15 — (UP)—Men who led the "states righters" out of the democratic party seemed content today to stay out.

Little resentment was noted in statements of revolt leaders of a year ago when they learned that two southern states were not invited to a meeting of the democratic national committee. Two others of the four that followed the J. Strom Thurmond banner were practically read out of the party.

Horace Wilkinson, Birmingham, Ala., said that "as far as I am concerned we are better off by following a hands-off policy with (Chairman J. Howard) McGrath's crowd."

Thurmond, South Carolina governor who was the states rights candidate for president and his home state's national committeeman, declined comment. McGrath, in calling the committee to meet Aug. 24, noted that he was "a candidate for election on the ticket of another party."

McGrath said that Alabama's committeeman, Marion Rushton, had resigned, and indicated that he did not expect Thurmond. He specifically said that he was not inviting the committee members from Louisiana and Mississippi.

Committeeman W. H. Blalock of Louisiana said he was "amazed" at the snub, particularly in view of the fact that "they would welcome Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and his left-wing Americans for democratic action. The state's committeewoman, Miss Mary Eleven Dickerson, said the matter was "very confused."

South Carolina Party Leader R. M. Kennedy commented that of mean little to South Carolina man - Humphrey gathering. He linked the President with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, (D-Minn.) a proponent of federal civil rights legislation.

"Not in the least bit surprised or worried," said former Alabama Gov. Frank Dixon.

Preston Parks of Tennessee cast the only electoral ballot for Thurmond outside those states. He said the action made him believe "even stronger in the principles for which states' righters stand."

He has no signs, no display cases, The goods are kept in the cases they come in, and he's pretty reluctant, sometimes, to wait on a customer. He got in the business when a hungry hunter noticed his well stocked cabin and bought a can of beans. Pretty soon trading with Phillebaum got to be a habit with folks.

Communism Is Trying and May Be Able to Cash in on Race Hatred in Far East

By JAMES D. WHITE
AP Foreign News Analyst
(For DeWITT MacKENZIE)

One of the more thoughtful men I know is a Chinese, born and educated among Americans.

A man like that never quite belongs to either world. Life has put him on a fence between the two peoples he springs from. And from that fence he may see things coming before either world does.

This man was talking recently about the way communism is sweeping over the land of his ancestors, China. He said:

"Perhaps without knowing it, communism has climbed on the tiger of latent race hatred in Asia. That is its real threat to the world in the long view. . . . That it may be tempted to try what Japan tried and failed to do is a racial war."

"Japan failed because China saw Asia for the Asiatics, and cast her lot with the west. But in this cold war China is falling on the other side, and as a colored people fighting for freedom from western control she will affect all other colored peoples fighting for the same thing.

"The thing is," my friend went on, "communism flows into this part of the world because nothing has replaced the once-great prestige of the white man."

"Communism's head ache will come when the problem of replacing this vast new area of power becomes paramount. It has to satisfy Asia's highly varied peoples who today are buying its promises for a better world."

"I think communism is too inflexible a doctrine ever to deliver on these promises. When its time comes to put up or shut up, communism will answer in Asia by reaching hatred of the white man."

Regardless of Moscow's pose of racial harmony, the local boys will beat the drums of race hatred just to stay in power. People will listen then as they listen now — because they are poor and know there must be something better than what they have."

"The danger will be all the greater unless the white man figures out some way to do a better job in Asia than communism," my friend said.

This talk took place some months ago, but very recently its viewpoint has been backed up by two interesting sources.

One is old Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa. He is another man who has lived with the racial problem all his life. He sees the world as being in the middle of a century of revolution by the "colored" races of mankind. This is a revolution out of backwardness but it also is a revolution among the black, yellow and brown races to get out from under the domination of those eastern races usually called white.

This revolt dates roughly from the Boxer rebellion in China in 1900 and is now at a climax of some kind with the nationalistic revolution led by the Chinese Reds. But all of Asia, smuts recently told Ernie Hill of the Chicago Daily News, is throbbing off white domination. "Asia is Africa's neighbor," said Smuts. "We must rise to vision and magnanimity or we shall be wiped out with the march of world events." He cited the present South African government under Dr. Malan as the sort of thing that drives natives and Asiatics toward communism.

It doesn't need to happen, Smuts believes. If the richer but outnumbered western half of the world faces the "facts of world change" and guides and helps the colored peoples to a better life, something more stable than communism will result and the two worlds can live in peace.

Thus, a South African elder statesman has much the same view of a Chinese-American. Yesterday a third man spoke up in Manila on the same theme.

Thomas H. Lockett, top American career diplomat in the Philippines, said that Asia is definitely on the march. Whether westerners like it or not, he said, Asia feels that colonialism belongs to a dead era. He said the United States would be wise to try to channel popular feeling in that part of the world towards democracy and freedom now, rather than see it stream into communism later.
